SADIE SUN

Vs.

THE MOON TWINS

BY HYLARI GIDEON

"But mum! I don't want to move to Willowville!" Sadie cried as her mum packed her bag. "Well sweetie, it's either here or Texas, which do you want?" Sadie didn't want to choose between her mum and her grandma. She would rather be with her mum in Texas. "I want to be with you, but I want to be in an area that I'm used to!" Sadie yelled as she got her lilac suitcase and her light blue backpack to the front door. "Well then might as well go to Willowville and get used to that area! We're gonna stick around there for a while anyway!" Sadie was so annoyed with her mum she just went with it. They packed their final things and went off to the airport.

They didn't talk the whole ride there, but when they got there, well, they ended up needing to talk. "phone" "yup" "keys" "yup" "earbuds?" "yes mum. I have everything!" When they got on the plane Sadie took out her earbuds. She had already forgot that she was on a plane. "mum, if my last name is Sabenburg here, what will it be in America?" Sadie asked her mum, confused. "It would be Sun, sweetie, and you need to plugin your earbuds." Sadie's rock music blasted across the airplane. Some mums covered their ears, some teenagers started to rock out, some babies cried, and some children laughed. But one mum stayed in her usual position, Sadie's mum. That's what she loved about her mum, she would never do anything to embarrass her, and that if she made a mistake, she wasn't mad, she was proud that she overcome her mistake and learned her lesson.

It was one hour into the flight when Sadie was waken up by the sound of a scream. Suddenly all Sadie could see was her dog, Syrup. She was barking her head off. "Calm down baby, its okay." But really, Sadie had just led to her best friend. Two girls in red uniforms and blue hair walked into the plane. "So, who here is Sadie Sun?" One of them said. Someone yelled across the plane. "Who are you?" "We? Who are we? We, are the Moon twins. Students at Search Prep, grade 9. Of course you've probably never heard of us, we're not going to hurt you if you tell us where Sadie Sun is." Then Sadie felt the need to get under a blanket. She started to pack her stuff. "What are you doing sweetie?" Sadie's mum asked. "Leaving this plane. Get your stuff." Sadie said as she quickly got her stuff in her bag. "What? Why?" Sadie's mum said in confusion. "Yes mum now hurry up." Sadie quickly took her stuff, Syrup, and her mum into the plane bathroom. "What? Who just went into the bathroom?" Yelled one of the twins. "It's called the powder room, sweetie." Sadie sassed the twins. Sadie quickly grabbed two parachutes, grabbed Syrup's collar, put her collar and leash on, and put on her parachute. "We are arriving in Willowville in 10 minutes." Said the pilot. "Sweetie, what is going on?" Sadie's mum said with concern. "Listen, these 'twins from my new school' are asking where I am and I am scared so we're jumping out of this airplane whether you ground me or not." Sadie was about to throw out the luggage when, "STOP! STAY WHERE YOU ARE!" But the twins were too late. Sadie and her luggage were already out of the plane. Sadie grabbed her dogs leash and her mum's hand, "grab the luggage!" yelled Sadie as her mum grabbed 3 suitcases and 2 backpacks. Sadie put on her bag, and pulled out her parachute. "Now we just float." And they waited, and waited, and waited, until they saw, what they wish they didn't see, a lion. Sadie screamed as she saw a ferris wheel. "A circus?" Sadie said in confusion. "What are these mates doing watching people dance? I bet these americans can do that themselves!" Yelled Sadie's mum as concerned as ever.

Everyone looked up and saw 2 people, 3 suitcases, a dog, and 2 backpacks falling out of the sky. "Well that's not something you see everyday!" Yelled somebody taking a photo. Then, as they landed, all they could see was flashing lights. Click! Click! Flash! Flash!

"Mum, whats uba?" Sadie asked her mum as the uber pulled up. "sweetie, it's called 'UBER', not uba." Sadie's mum said with a little giggle. "Now come on, we've got to get to the apartment building, and it's an hour and a half away do you got to use the powder room before we go?" Sadie's mum was very stressed. Sadie could tell, so she just quickly shook her head and put the luggage in the back of the car.

When they got to the car store, Sadie was amused by all of the cars. One course, they had already purchased the car online, but she had never seen a car in America before. She walked over to where her mum was with the car to just see a light grey, plain old, Sedan.

"How do you like it sweetie?"

"It's awful, but it'll work."

"Well glad your greatful!" said Sadie's mum, paranoid.

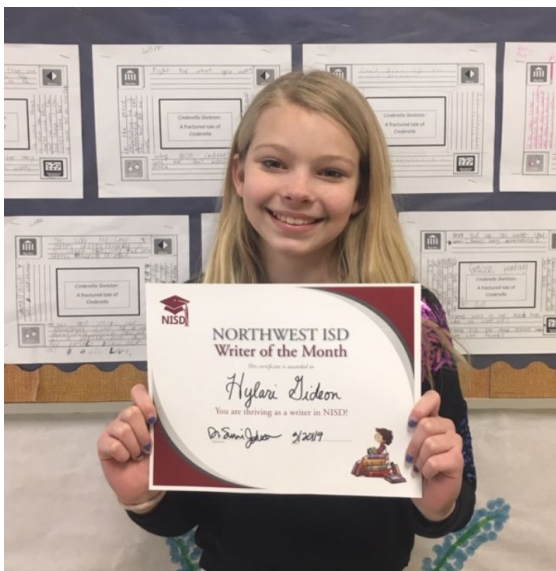

Sadie was getting into the passenger seat about to buckle in when her mum died laughing. "Well I suppose your driving, eh?" Sadie looked up to see a wheel whirring side.

Sadie's mum started to unlock the door. Sadie was so excited to see her new apartment. After all, it did have the best reviews on the website it was on. When her mum opened the door Syrup ran inside. She suddenly started barking very loudly in the bathroom. "Syrup, whats wrong?" But Sadie already knew what was wrong when she walked in. "Awwwww, wait, Syrup, whys there a cat on the curtains?" Sadie looked up to see a tiny grey kitten on the curtains, she was obviously frightened, as she was about to try to scratch Syrup. "Awww, here, let me help you down from there." Sadie took the little rascal cute off of the curtains. "Mum, whats your opinion on cats?"

"Sadie! Get your cat!" Yelled Sadie's mum. "Where's Wilburg?" "In the kitchen sink!" Since 3 weeks ago Sadie and her mum moved in there have been a hassle. Wilburg, Sadie's kitten, ended up needing to go to the vet. Sadie had accidentally gotten the wrong uniform twice, and she had to buy all of her strange, odd school supplies before school started.

"You got your schedule?" "Yup let me check and see what classes I've got."
